Greyfriars Bobby

by Ben Johnson

In 1850 a gardener called John Gray, together with his wife Jess and son John, arrived in Edinburgh. Unable to find work as a gardener he joined the Edinburgh Police Force as a night watchman.

To keep him company through the long winter nights John took on a partner, a small Skye Terrier, his 'watchdog' called Bobby. Together John and Bobby became a familiar sight walking through the old cobbled streets of Edinburgh. Through thick and thin, winter and summer, they were faithful friends.

The years on the streets in every weather were stressful and sometimes dangerous for John, and he fell ill with tuberculosis.

John eventually died of the disease on the 15th February 1858 and was buried in Greyfriars Kirkyard. Bobby soon touched the hearts of the local residents when he refused to leave his master's grave, even in the worst weather conditions.

The gardener and keeper of Greyfriars tried on many occasions to evict Bobby from the Kirkyard. In the end he gave up and built a shelter for Bobby by placing cloth beneath two tablestones at the side of John Gray's grave.

The kind people of Edinburgh took good care of Bobby, but still he remained loyal to his master. For fourteen years the dead man's faithful dog kept constant watch and guard over the grave until his own death in 1872.
